

United States History and Geography: Making a New Nation Grade Five

- 5.1 Students describe the major pre-Columbian settlements, including the cliff dwellers and pueblo people of the desert Southwest, the American Indians of the Pacific Northwest, the nomadic nations of the Great Plains, and the woodland peoples east of the Mississippi River.
- 5.2 Students trace the routes of early explorers and describe the early explorations of the Americas.
- 5.3 Students describe the cooperation and conflict that existed among the American Indians and between the Indian nations and the new settlers.
- 5.4 Students understand the political, religious, social, and economic institutions that evolved in the colonial era.
- 5.5 Students explain the causes of the American Revolution.
- 5.6 Students understand the course and consequences of the American Revolution.

- 5.7 Students describe the people and events associated with the development of the U.S. Constitution and analyze the Constitution's significance as the foundation of the American republic.
- 5.8 Students trace the colonization, immigration, and settlement patterns of the American people from 1789 to the mid-1800s, with emphasis on the role of economic incentives, effects of the physical and political geography, and transportation systems.
- 5.9 Students know the location of the current 50 states and the names of their capitals.

5.1

United States History and Geography: Making a New Nation

Students describe the major pre-Columbian settlements, including the cliff dwellers and pueblo people of the desert Southwest, the American Indians of the Pacific Northwest, the nomadic nations of the Great Plains, and the woodland peoples east of the Mississippi River.

5.2

United States History and Geography: Making a New Nation

Students trace the routes of early explorers and describe the early explorations of the Americas.

5.3

United States History and Geography: Making a New Nation

Students describe the cooperation and conflict that existed among the American Indians and between the Indian nations and the new settlers.

5.4

United States History and Geography: Making a New Nation

Students understand the political, religious, social, and economic institutions that evolved in the colonial era.

5.5

United States History and Geography:
Making a New Nation

Students explain the causes of the American Revolution.

5.6

United States History and Geography: Making a New Nation

Students understand the course and consequences of the American Revolution.

5.7

United States History and Geography: Making a New Nation

Students describe the people and events associated with the development of the U.S. Constitution and analyze the Constitution's significance as the foundation of the American republic.

5.8

United States History and Geography: Making a New Nation

Students trace the colonization, immigration, and settlement patterns of the American people from 1789 to the mid-1800s, with emphasis on the role of economic incentives, effects of the physical and political geography, and transportation systems.

5.9

United States History and Geography:
Making a New Nation

Students know the location of the current 50 states and the names of their capitals.

5.1

United States History and Geography:
Making a New Nation

Students describe the major pre-Columbian settlements, including the cliff dwellers and pueblo people of the desert Southwest, the American Indians of the Pacific Northwest, the nomadic nations of the Great Plains, and the woodland peoples east of the Mississippi River.

5.2

United States History and Geography:
Making a New Nation

Students trace the routes of early explorers and describe the early explorations of the Americas.

5.3

United States History and Geography:
Making a New Nation

Students describe the cooperation and conflict that existed among the American Indians and between the Indian nations and the new settlers.

5.4

United States History and Geography:
Making a New Nation

Students understand the political, religious, social, and economic institutions that evolved in the colonial era.

5.5

United States History and Geography:
Making a New Nation

Students explain the causes of the American Revolution.

5.6

United States History and Geography:
Making a New Nation

Students understand the course and consequences of the American Revolution.

5.7

United States History and Geography:
Making a New Nation

Students describe the people and events associated with the development of the U.S. Constitution and analyze the Constitution's significance as the foundation of the American republic.

5.8

United States History and Geography:
Making a New Nation

Students trace the colonization, immigration, and settlement patterns of the American people from 1789 to the mid-1800s, with emphasis on the role of economic incentives, effects of the physical and political geography, and transportation systems.

5.9

United States History and Geography:
Making a New Nation

Students know the location of the current 50 states and the names of their capitals.